Foreword . . . .

The day -- A promising one in September.
The occasion -- Sixty-eight freshmen about to begin a journey which would bring them to the doorstep of success.

Motivated by a deep desire to label themselves as true Piusters, the "hikers" struggle to overcome every obstacle which would impede an eventful outcome.

As the years passed, the paths became narrower, and the mountains, steeper. In spite of this, determined travelers continued on and up.

And now, at the summit of the last mountain -- their goal almost in sight -- they pause and think of all the joys and sorrows of the past four years.

The Ascent Is A

Trying One, But...

Our Youngest Hikers

From the interested faces of Gloria Quinn, Susan Ducharme, Tynia Pagano, Toni Pagano, Darlene Filingo, Ronald Evans, Michael Curcio and Raymond De Franko, it is evident that first year English appeals to them.

Go Forward

With Tighe Scott as moderator, Frank Duvo, Susan Ducharme, Jane DiGiacomo, Patricia Bozzuto, Gloria Antonioli, Victoria Paolini, and Priscilla Due take time to review Latin declensions.

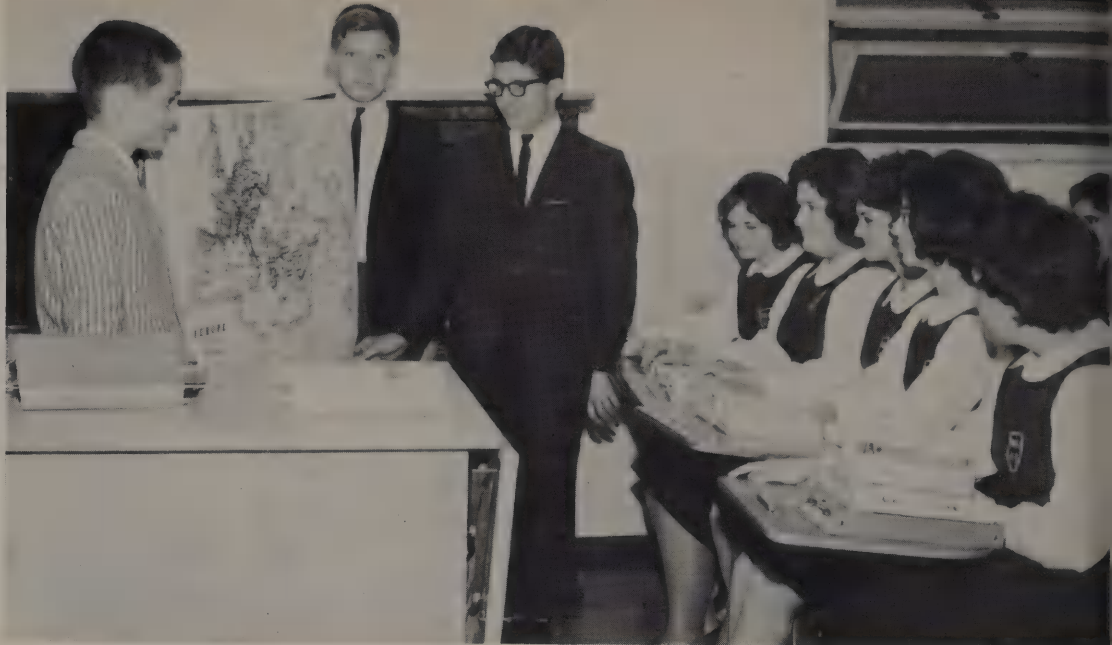

From where they now stand, the Freshmen's path seems to be a winding one, filled with obstacles that must be overcome. This doesn't seem to bother the Freshman class of '64, though! With a willing spirit and happy smile, they begin the climb that will bring them to the summit of Rainbow Trail.

By illustrations at the board, Philip De Frank, Pat Pavan, Rosemary Guida, Margo Smith, Anthony Detzi, Patricia Murphy, Andrew Ducharme, and Joanne Martino prove the theories studied in the book concerning buoyancy.

To Meet

WHO SAYS HISTORY IS BORING? Our students, Joseph Racciato, Mario Giovanni, and Anthony Liberto trace early European civilization, as Stephanie Visi, Philomena Sabatine, Molly Rica, Mary Jo Ruggiero, and Angella DeNardo follow in their textbooks.

Mathematician Louis Crafa demonstrates the position of numbers on the X-axis, while Petrina Molle, Linda Villiano, Alvaro Ruduzzi, John Vicario, Michael Sabatino, Joseph Galatiato, Pat Vietro, and Edward Nerino pay attention.

OPERATION ALGEBRA! Elizabeth Dotta, Warren Nelson, Patricia Haring, Anthony Curtulo, Francis Dapkewicz, and Frank De Paolo practice and check those complicated equations.

The Challenge.

Tarcisio Campo points to the new freshmen religion book, "Going to God", and Gloria Quinn, Darlene Filingo, Mary Capozzolo, Nancy Difilippantonio, Marino Saveri, Neil Roberti, and Peter Racciato share his interest.

Freshmen boys, Joseph Racciato, Tighe Scott, Warren Nelson, and Richard Smith, check in the file for reading material. Mario Giovanni and Pat Vietro concentrate on building reading skill.

The tenth grade literature students, James Sylvester, Judith Paolini, Thomas Fedon, Joyce Detzi, Elizabeth Smith, Barbara Swinson, and Kathleen Stackhouse, thoroughly examine the structure of a medieval castle explained by Joseph Romano and Michael Vigiolto.

Near Midway,

Sophomores march forward as they begin to plant their feet on sturdy ground. They have gone through the hardest period, that of adjusting, and now they continue to attain the goals of Pius X High School through their own work and the wonderful assistance of our faculty. During the next two years at Pius X, they will strive to achieve these aims and prove themselves worthy and capable of being called students of Pius X High School.

SAY IT LIKE THIS! ALTIOR PEDIMUS. Thomas Ferrazzano, Philip Capobianco, Frank La Valva, Barbara Swinson, Sarah Castone, Ann Romano, and Nancy Robertone try to copy Francis Bolinsky's technique in pronouncing difficult Latin idioms.

Vivacious Sophomores

Gene Schiavone questions Barbara Karabinus and Kathleen Stackhouse on their Spanish translations, as Theresa Le Donne, Patricia Sapone, Daniel Leraris, Angelina De Nardo, Thomas Suprys, Philip Sabatino, Maria Pullo, Philip Capobianco, and Michael Trigiani await their answers.

Aim For

Angles and lines puzzle the minds of our Geometry students, Dominic Sbrocchi, Julius Sabo, Thomas Ferrazzano, Francis Bolinsky, Nancy Robertone, Rosalind Duvo, Michelle Coccia, and Anna Jo Vonelli.

WHAT ARE THALLOPHYTES? The answer to this and many other biological problems are being discovered by Charles De Nardo, Samuel Nittle, Francis Pullo, Michael Pagano, David Trilli, and Vincent Caiazzo.

Michael Ferrazzano, Frank La Valva, Louis Powlette, Thomas Sheerin, Sarah Castone, Theresa Angelini, and Patricia Gardner share in the instructions given by Ann Romano as she outlines the History of Salvation.

Higher Levels.

Louise Albanese, Vita Falcone, Maria Buschi, Coletta LaValva, Joanne LaPenna, and Rosemarie Ducharme enjoy playing classical recordings in their music class.

WHERE WAS BURGOYNE DEFEATED? Nicholas Sabatine, Frank Sapone, and Stephen Zegalia try to locate the point on the map as Patricia Branch, Angella DeNardo, Carol Cascario, and Elissa Bosco search for the correct answer.

Junior typists, Joanne LaPenna, Vincent Sylvester, Maria Molle, Coletta LaValva, Julia Ceraul, Joan LaValva, and Maria Buschi, under Sister Marie Cecile's supervision, strive for thirty words a minute.

Philomena Gruppo, Jacqueline Yannuzzi, Phyllis Gruppo, William Curcio, Eugene Bolinsky, Joseph Pinto, and Louis Rossigno browse over our up-to-date Spanish musical library in language class.

For Energetic Juniors

With only a quarter more of the road to trod, the juniors strive to reach their pot of gold. Mindful of this precious goal, they try to match the endeavors of their predecessors, the class of '64. They have received their class rings, and are fully aware of the duties required of those who wear the school's insignia. Ready to accept the responsibilities left to them by the departing seniors, they grasp the opportunity to show their capabilities.

Our alert chemists, Michael Zito, Roger Antonioli, Joseph Pinto, Louis Rossigno, Jeffrey Brusie, and Leonard Litzi, watch as William Curcio attempts to generate hydrogen.

The Only

Vincent Sylvester and Roger Antonioli correct Linda Cesare's paper as Angelina Sylvester, Rosanne Caiazzo, and Lucia Romano discuss their own outlines during composition period.

Business Math is an important asset in our Juniors' opinions. Domenick Scarlese, Ronald Detzi, Domenick Abruzzese, Philip DeRenzis, and Michael Confalone check Beverly Zambone's progress at the board.

Our business students, Vita Falcone, Rosemarie Ducharme, Louise Albanese, Joanne LaPenna, Coletta LaValva, Joan LaValva, and Marie Molle, agree that Steno is worthwhile

Way

Is

As Leonard Litzi attempts to solve a difficult Algebra problem, Theresa De Renzis, Helena Fioriglio, Jeffrey Brusie, Mary Margaret Finkbeiner, Mary Louise Falcone, Beverly Sabatine, and Jean Taylor stand by to offer their assistance.

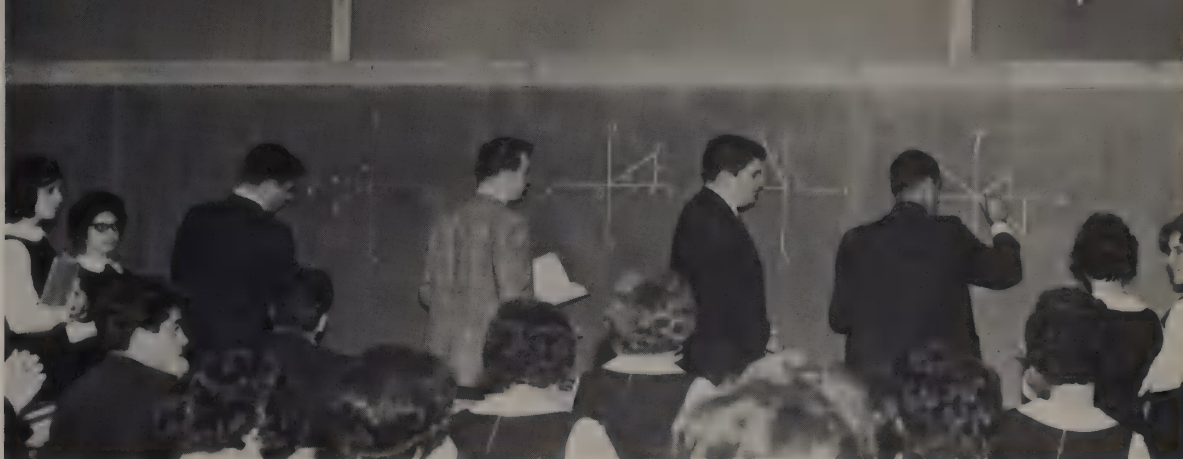

WHO'S WINNING? It seems as if the boys are; but Michael Zito and Rose Cappola still have a few more questions for Joseph Pontrelli, Robert Waring, Judy Campanero, Connie Buskirk, and Julia Ceraul.

Highlights from Dickens's "A Tale of Two Cities" are being discussed by Philip De Renzis, Ronald Detzi, Elissa Bosco, Maria Buschi, and Rose Elaine Cappola.

Up.

Trig problems are a challenge; but our senior mathematicians, Lucia Giovanni, Antoinette Di Pierro, Frank Godino, John LaBar, Francis Cerino, John Racciato, Mary Louise Honeker, and Suzanne Embardino, diligently strive to solve them.

Kathleen Sabatine, Floria Poloni, Solita Zito, Joanne Reto, Thomas Sapone, and John Falcone work toward success in business life, according to the tenets they learn in Typing II Class.

That interesting and fascinating science of Physics appeals especially to our senior boys. Donald Vicario, James Orlando, and Thomas Sterlachini experiment with water waves while Eugene Rushin, Francis Cerino, and William Zanette check their procedure.

Sophisticated Seniors

For fifty-six seniors, June 1964 will mark the end of their high school days. The journey has been a difficult one with countless obstacles to be overcome. Yet there have been many wonderful moments, and these are the ones that will remain in the minds of the graduates of '64 as they prepare to go into the world. For the time being, their futures are indefinite; but, if these "guys and gals" continue to show the determination and perseverance that have marked their four years at Pius, only success can result.

Our debaters, Richard Curcio, James Angeline, Frank Baskar, Angela Fiorot, Carol Pysher, Carmella Farole, and Theresa Greco, strike an interesting topic to discuss in P. A. D. class.

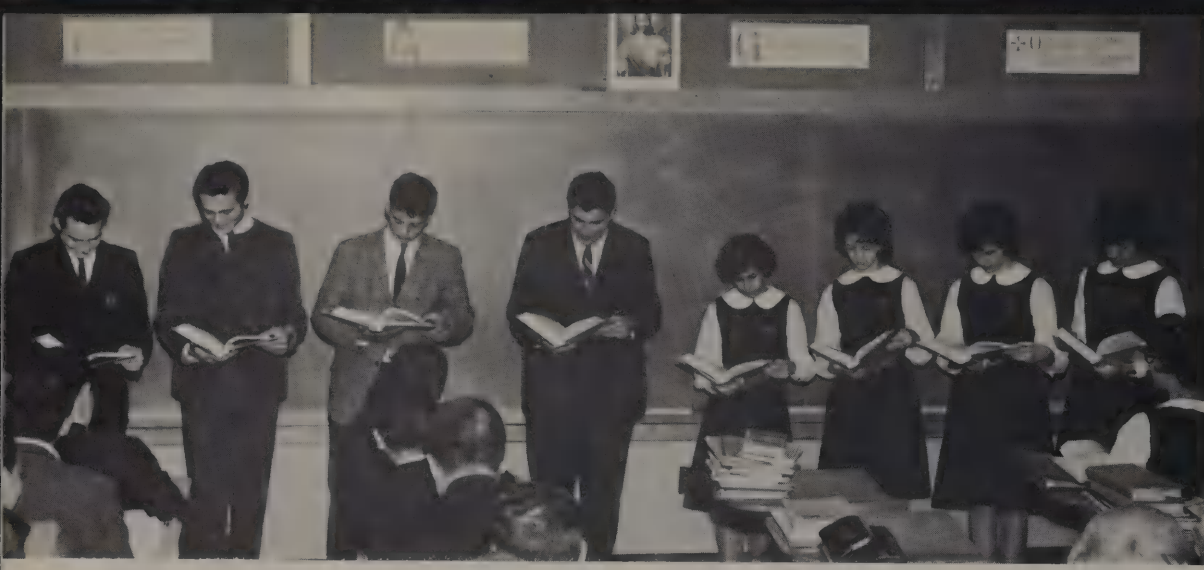

Sheer delight is shown on the faces of Spanish III students, Lorraine Leraris, Adele Nelson, Suzanne Embardino, Marguerite Matthies, Robert Renaldo, James Detzi, and Frank Zito as they learn effectively through a Spanish record.

Tread The Final Steps

With ledgers opened, Janet Greene, Elaine Bartolacci, James Orlando, Judith Jones, Michael De Renzis, and Paul Karner now go on to complete their sets of books.

Of

The drama of "Macbeth" proved to be enjoyable for English students. Some of the main characters, Frank Baskar, Samuel DePalma, Richard Curcio, Francis Cerino, Elaine Bartolacci, Alice Buskirk, Roxanne Armelin, and Jo-Ann Capobianco, present the classic to the rest of the students.

Rainbow

Fourth-year Religion students, Marilyn Ruggiero, Joanne Comunale, Lorraine Leraris, Daniel Turtzo, and Thomas Sterlachini, give their full attention to Stephanie Nasatka as she explains the School of Moses. Such discussions enliven the course of Apologetics.

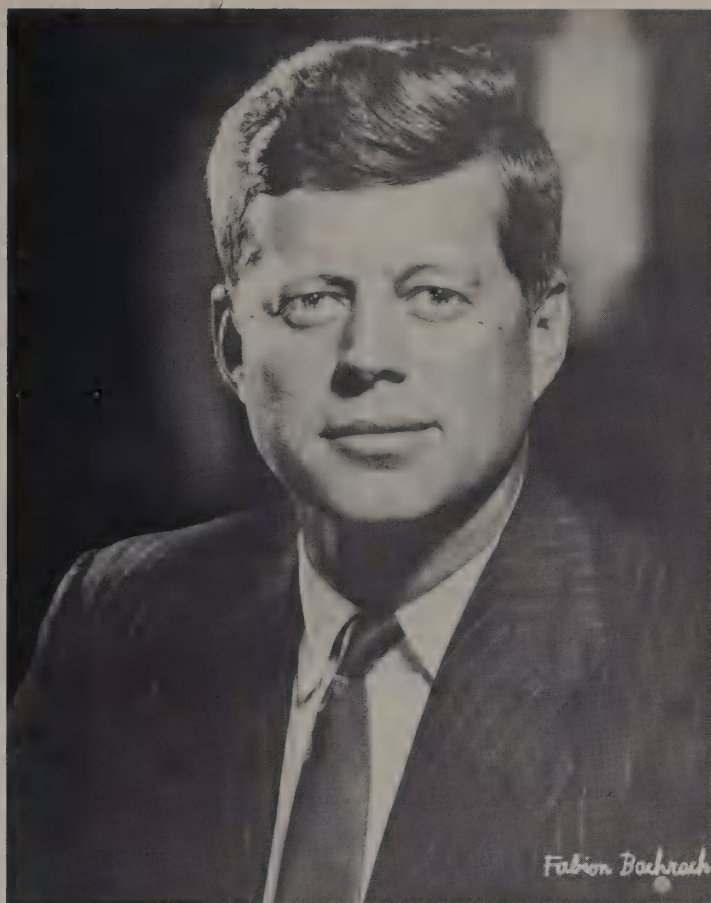

STENO CAN BE FUN! Business students, Miriam Herrera and Roxanne Armelin, demonstrate the importance of steno to fellow stenographers Phyllis Kotch, Elaine Bartolacci, Diane Manasser, Alice Buskirk and Carol Meixsell.

"Now The Trumpet

Summons Us . . . "

"Hail to the Chief"--the music rang out clearly on that cold winter day--the day that John Fitzgerald Kennedy became the thirty-fifth President of the United States.

Just a few years later, the same song played again to honor the President for the last time. People wept as the honor guard stood around his coffin--draped in the American flag--and paid their final salute to their Commander-in-Chief.

Now we have come to accept the consequences of that tragedy. The spirited, confident figure of John F. Kennedy is gone. We no longer see that Kennedy grin on television or that characteristic speaking pose with a fore-finger pointing to the unreachable.

But we will always remember what this young and vigorous leader did for our country. Let it not be said that John Fitzgerald Kennedy died in vain. Let us go forward to meet the challenge, but let us always remember his words:

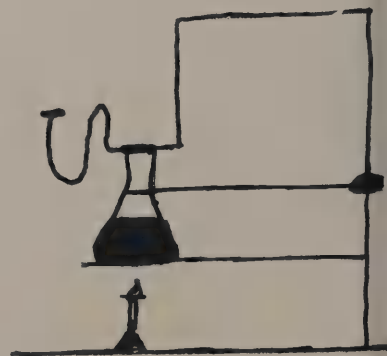

"My fellow Americans: ask not what your country can do for you--ask what you can do for your country."

Lorraine Leraris

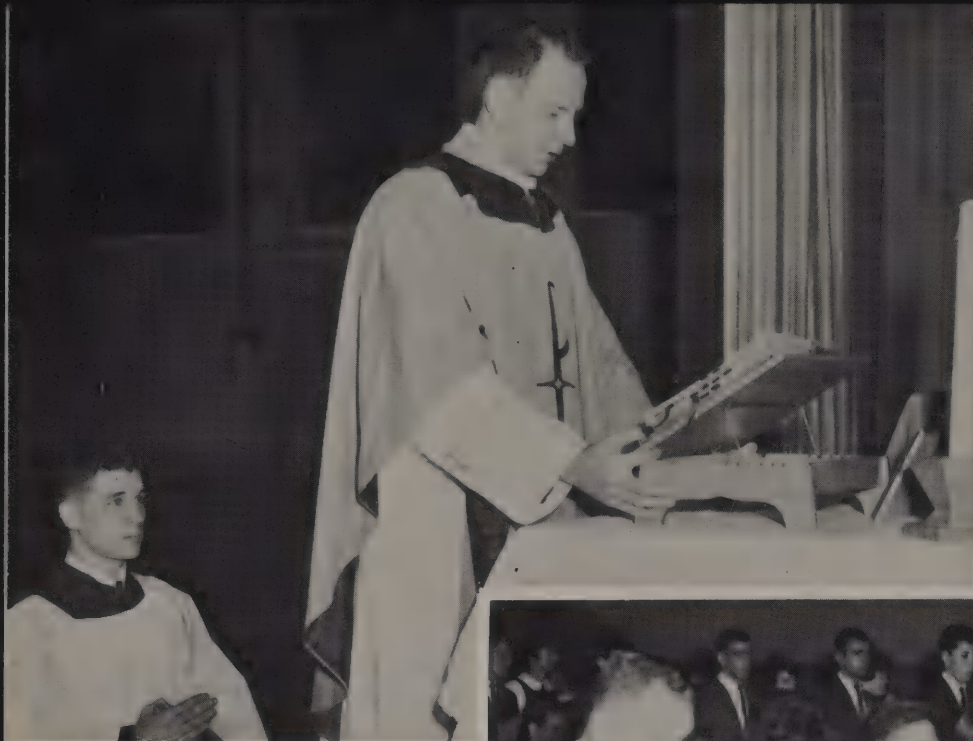

*A Resting Point
In Our Journey*

Weekly Mass is celebrated by Father Graff as Donald Vicario acts as server. This greatest act of devotion is a supplement of our Catholic religion here at Pius X.

Unified in faith, both students and faculty participate fully in the Sacrifice of the Mass.

The Boys' Choir, led by Father Loeper, is practicing a hymn for one of our weekly Masses.

Pius boys pose with their retreat master, Father Tucker, at the end of a successful retreat. All of those participating derived many spiritual benefits. For that fact, the guys acted so holy when they returned that if you look closely, you should almost see their halos! . . . or did they leave them at Villa Maria Retreat House, Wernersville?

Christus Vincit . . . Christus Regnat

Junior and senior girls of the Catholic Action Club assort stamps which are processed to give help to the missions. Though newly formed, this club has been very active in putting Catholic ideals and principles into practice.

Democracy Manifests Itself

President of the Student Council, John Racciato, gives a forceful speech promising to uphold the duties and responsibilities of the office entrusted to him.

As leaders and directors of the student body, the council members exert their influence best through good example. They have been selected by popular vote of their fellow classmates who have given them the responsibility to maintain order, promote better student-teacher relationships, and to provide a forum for expression. With their high ideals and initiative they strive to carry out the policies and principles of our school.

The members of the Pius X 1963-64 Student Council: John Racciato, Suzanne Embardino, Beverly Sabatine, Nancy Robertone, James Gorman, Robert Ruggiero, Elizabeth Dotta, Charles DeNardo, William Curcio, James Detzi, and Connie Scagliotta.

Senior Student Council members John Racciato, James Detzi, Suzanne Embardino, and Connie Scagliotta put the finishing touches on the tree in the foyer.

In Our Student Council.

During one of the weekly meetings, John Racciato clarifies a fine point in the newly adopted Student Council Constitution, while the other interested members listen carefully.

Tradition Ranks High

The Christmas tree takes on a special meaning to the whole student body, as our principal, Father Loeper, bestows the traditional blessing.

Just as Christmas would be incomplete without the tree and presents, so would the school year be without the various traditions which have been passed down and added to each year. Many of them, such as weekly Mass, are so much a part of each of us that it is difficult to imagine school life without them. All of these traditions will leave a definite and lasting mark on the characters of all Piusters.

A touch of true Christmas spirit is added to the hearts of all in the retelling of the Birth of Christ in drama form by the senior class.

Of All.

The Christmas wreath, decorated by the Student Council members, replaces the advent wreath with the coming of Christmas.

In The Hearts

William Curcio, representative of the Junior class, delivers a short talk on the real meaning of the class ring.

Father Loeper blesses the rings of Beverly Zambone and Beverly Sabatine. This ring ceremony adds significance and dignity to a Junior's class ring.

Active Clubs Display Ability.

The interesting process of titration occupies an important place in the advanced chemistry of Joseph King, Lorraine Leraris, Nicholas Sabatine, and Lucia Romano. They almost seem to enjoy their Honors' Course on a Saturday morning!

Senior girls prove that they can be good bowlers too. Here, Elaine Bartolacci, Lucia Giovanni, Angela Fiorot, and Carol Pysher watch as Stephanie Nasatka demonstrates the correct method of holding a bowling ball.

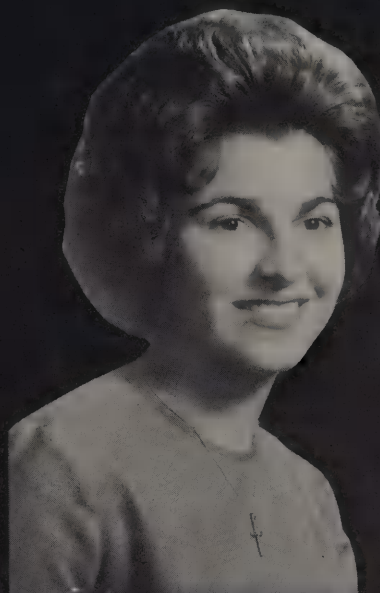

These guys consider themselves to be old "pros". Daniel Turtzo seems to say, "Hurry up, so we can get on with the game", and George Uliano, Robert Renaldo, William Zanette, and William Waring seem to agree with him.

Winners of Today

In this year's Science Fair, Daniel Turtzo, a senior, captured first prize with his original chemistry project. Our sincere congratulations are extended to Daniel and the other winners.

Second prize winner, Louis Rossigno, demonstrated the analysis of different vegetables by the interesting process of chromatography.

Interested parents and friends took an active part in the Science Fair by viewing the projects made by students.

Philip Capobianco, who is only a sophomore, displays his successful biology project. Hard work and continued interest helped him to win third prize this year.

Scientists

For the third year, Thomas Sterlachini, has succeeded in making a prize-winning project. This year, his physics project won honorable mention.

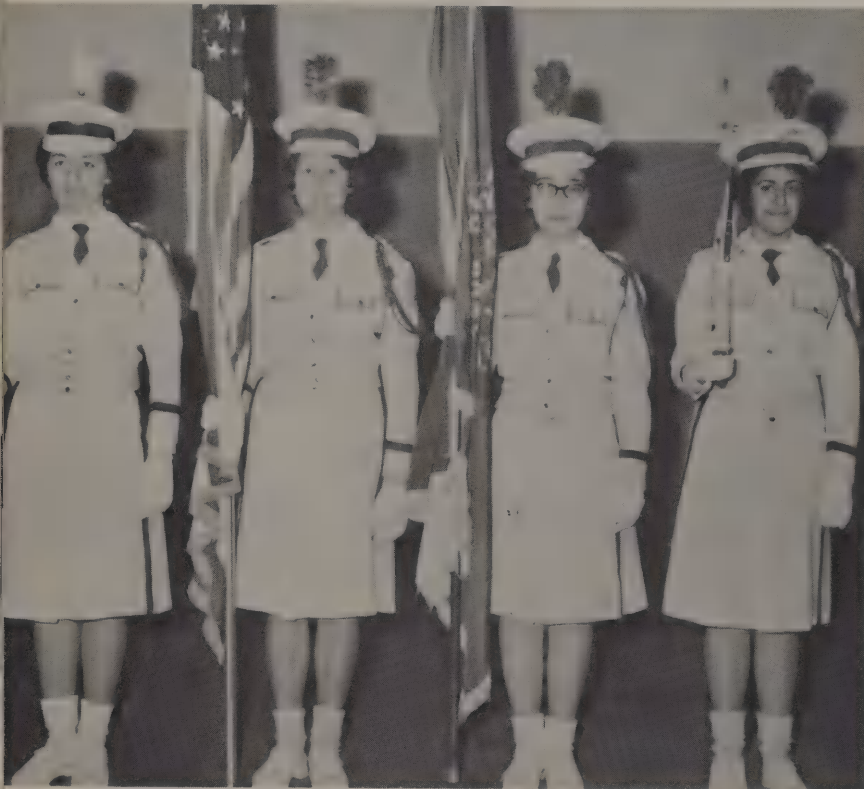

Marilyn Ruggiero stands proudly beside her physics project which won honorable mention in our Science Fair. Her simple seismograph really works.

Sprightly Entertainers

The Pius X High School Band performs during half time under the direction of Mr. Louis Angelini, who has been an encouraging and efficient leader.

Members of our alert Colorguard, Theresa Greco, Anna Jo Vonelli, Louise Albanese, and Jo Ann Capobianco have done an excellent job in leading the band during the past season.

Peppy Royalties, Stephanie Zelenka, Roxanne Armelin, Rosanne Caiazzo, Phyllis Gruppo, Jeanette Due, and Judy Jones, strike a "V" for victory which they all hope and cheer for.

Give Their All.

Our four Senior cheerleaders, Stephanie Zelenka, Judy Jones, Roxanne Armelin, and Jeanette Due, have been an inspiration to the members of the teams as well as the students. Through their combined efforts and hard work the school spirit of Pius X has remained high.

"OOF!" The Belvidere player is saying while being tackled by Frank Zito, (16), Pius X half-back.

Joe King, Pius X end, reaches for an aerial on the seventeen yard line in our game with Parkland.

Our

During the game with Parkland, Frank Zito (16), recovers a fumble.

In our rout with Minisink Valley, John Racciato, Pius X half-back, is tackled after a large gain to the Royal's advantage.

The games are only one phase of the football cycle. Few people seem to realize that most games are won on the practice field. This year, under the excellent coaching of Vincent Shemanski, the Royals had a victorious season, the first one in three years. Now that the Royals are back on their winning ways, we look hopefully to next season and to the seasons thereafter to be victorious under the leadership of Mr. Shemanski.

Frank Zito (16) indicates by his signal that the touchdown tried by Frank Godino is good in the game with Minisink Valley.

Fighting Royals!

During the game with Minisink, Frank Godino (20), Pius X quarterback, follows his blocking into the end zone.

Connie Jo Scagliotti (14), Theresa DeRenzis (30), and Theresa Le Donne (5) anxiously await the outcome of a jump ball. Although it may appear that the Washington player has our player out-jumped, the speed of the Royallettes on the floor makes up for differences in height.

Despite a good effort to block the shot, Theresa De Renzis (30) hits for two points from the corner in a winning cause.

IT'S GOOD! Phyllis Kotch (21) adds another two points to the home team's cause. The Royallettes, edged by Washington, in an excitement filled game, scored 30-29.

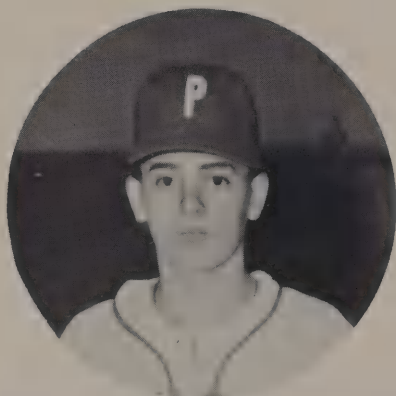

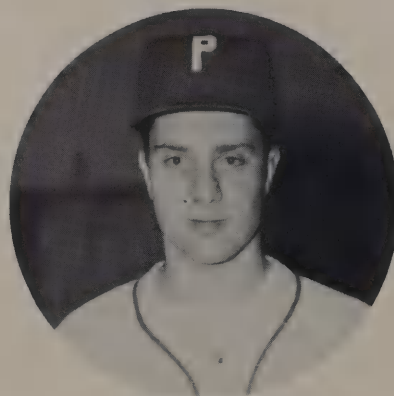

With a three ball - two strike count on the batter and bases loaded, the Pius X bench awaits the outcome of the next pitch.

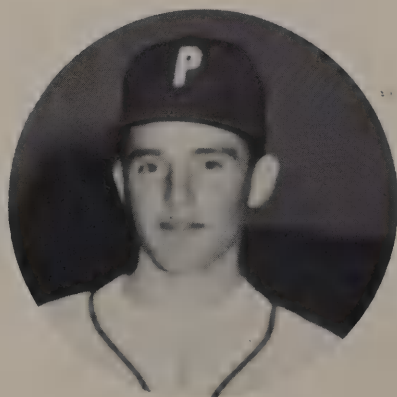

Baseball! Baseball! Baseball! America's Number 1 game is not overlooked at Pius X High School. No matter what the odds may be, our spectators can look forward to a hard fought game. In past years, under the expert coaching of Mr. Shemanski, Pius has had some very good teams. TIRED? Who wouldn't be after a 50-mile hike? These seem to be the thoughts going through the minds of Louis Cappozzolo, Paul Karner, James Orlando, John Racciato, James Talotta and James Detzi.

Looking Back To

Cherished Moments

A new feature capturing the hearts of all is an inspiring performance by the Boys' Choir.

Music Makers

RISE MEN OF DESTINY! Inspired by the tremendous work accomplished by the United Nations, our Glee Club sings in praise of this worldwide organization.

James Ciliberti's clarinet solo delights the audience.

Brighten Any Day

Our talented pianist, Joseph Angelini, displays his musical ability with his rendition of "B Flat Minor Concerto."

One of the highlights of the school year is the annual Spring Musicale. The '63 program was enthusiastically received by all who attended. Its success is due to the hard work of Sister Maria Bona, combined with hours of practice and the careful guidance of our director, Mr. Angelini.

Soprano girls raise their voices in joyful harmony.

Smiling seniors and past graduates, Alfred De Renzis and Lorraine Leraris, Richard Fusakio and Connie Scagliotta, arrive at the dance hall which is decorated to the theme of "Sleigh bells and Holly."

Our Most

A joyous Christmas spirit reigns at the Holly Hop as couples dance to the music.

One of our Seniors, Stephanie Zelenka, and her escort Marty Figlioli, take time out from dancing to pose for the photographer.

Enchanted Evenings

During the course of the evening, James Detzi and Lorraine Leraris pose by the picturesque fountain, one of the highlights of their junior prom.

Dancers in a festive mood glide across the decorated ballroom at the Prom.

A happy quartet, Robert Renaldo, Mary Honeker, Antoinette Di Pierro, and Thomas Sterlachini, admire the lovely garden scene of "Moonlight and Roses."

Last year's queen, Carol Garafalo, crowns Our Lady as the honor court sings and pays tribute on this solemn occasion.

Father McHale, guest speaker for our May Procession, is an inspiration for all.

Devotion And Honor Go Hand In Hand

One of the many aspects of our annual award assembly is captured as Donna Comunale receives a basketball letter from Judy Bavaria.

A Fond Farewell

Carol Garafalo and Alfred DeRenzis lead the graduates into the auditorium.

The class of '63 has graduated but they will not be forgotten. Now, they are a part of the world and are striving to live up to the ideals which they have been taught at Pius X.

Senior boys await the beginning of Mass.

Parents and friends join graduating seniors in praying for future success at their Baccalaureate Mass.

Representing the class of '63, Pat Confalone bids adieu to his Alma Mater in his captivating Valedictory speech.

In his message to the graduates, Monsignor J. Francis Tucker, O.S.F.S., reviews the Catholic principles which will help them in future years.

Happiness tinted with sentiment shows on the faces of our new graduates.

As Father Fitzgerald congratulates Jolaine King on receiving her diploma, he seems to share her joy.

To Past Graduates

After receiving their diplomas, graduates wait for commencement exercises to resume.

The Salutatorian, Juanita Dunbar, proudly accepts her award from our principal, Father Loeper.

Rosanne,

Succes and happiness to one of the greatest and sweetest friend I'll ever have. Always remember the good times, romances, & fun we shared, the times
we slept over, the walks
& rides all over, the silly things we did, the walk downtown, the advice we gave each other, the surprise parties, the serious talks the serious talks that turned out silly, sharing books, getting each other out of trouble,
the parks, the movies, discussing colleges, the bee hive, going to Easton on the bus, Atlantic City,
New York, the retreats you always managed to get out of, the silly fights we had but didn't last,
And loads of other things you can think of. Just remember your best friend in high school and call me up once in a while, when you're married.

Epilogue:

The goal has been reached; the journey completed.
A world full of challenge lies ahead.

Armed with the knowledge and experience of past years, the class of '64 will undoubtedly be prepared to climb the steepest mountain, regardless of how impossible it may seem.

It is said that at the end of every rainbow there awaits a pot of gold. As the graduates approach the end of "Rainbow Trail", they wonder what that pot of gold holds for them.

Only the future can tell.
